

Be sure to work hard to become the person you want to be

You may not be able to see the results of what you are doing now, for the time being, but don't forget that before a tree grows it also has to take root and it also has to sink nutrients over a long period of time. Take a moment to think about it, which is so much talent, those who make you envious and excellent have also been over the mountains in silence.

So don't be so quick to dismiss the fact that you are only half way through your life when everything is still up in the air.

Believe that if you keep on keeping on, you will eventually be able to embrace the sea of stars. When you look back in the future, you will see that there are no shortcuts to all successes and there is no point in complaining.

The only way to win is to keep working hard. Those times when you work hard in secret will eventually light up your way forward.

No one's life can be smooth sailing, but I hope that you can be a match for him when you encounter a difficult time in life.

You have to believe that as long as you work hard, you will be better in the future than you are now. Everything you want, you can only rely on yourself after all. The life you want, you can only give yourself.

Not everyone may end up shining brightly, but the light from your hard work on the road will definitely shine on many people, including yourself. There are many things we can change now, and if we can't change them, we can learn to let them go.

Face reality well, love life well, and create better things for yourself within your means. You can do it all!
